IB mission statement

The International Baccalaureate aims to develop inquiring, knowledgeable and caring young people who help to create a better and more peaceful world through intercultural understanding and respect.

To this end the organization works with schools, governments and international organizations to develop challenging programmes of international education and rigorous assessment.

These programmes encourage students across the world to become active, compassionate and lifelong learners who understand that other people, with their differences, can also be right.

IB learner profile

The aim of all IB programmes is to develop internationally minded people who, recognizing their common humanity and shared guardianship of the planet, help to create a better and more peaceful world.

As IB learners we strive to be:

INQUIRERS

We nurture our curiosity, developing skills for inquiry and research. We know how to learn independently and with others. We learn with enthusiasm and sustain our love of learning throughout life.

KNOWLEDGEABLE

We develop and use conceptual understanding, exploring knowledge across a range of disciplines. We engage with issues and ideas that have local and global significance.

THINKERS

We use critical and creative thinking skills to analyse and take responsible action on complex problems. We exercise initiative in making reasoned, ethical decisions.

COMMUNICATORS

We express ourselves confidently and creatively in more than one language and in many ways. We collaborate effectively, listening carefully to the perspectives of other individuals and groups.

PRINCIPLED

We act with integrity and honesty, with a strong sense of fairness and justice, and with respect for the dignity and rights of people everywhere. We take responsibility for our actions and their consequences.

OPEN-MINDED

We critically appreciate our own cultures and personal histories, as well as the values and traditions of others. We seek and evaluate a range of points of view, and we are willing to grow from the experience.

CARING

We show empathy, compassion and respect. We have a commitment to service, and we act to make a positive difference in the lives of others and in the world around us.

RISK-TAKERS

We approach uncertainty with forethought and determination; we work independently and cooperatively to explore new ideas and innovative strategies. We are resourceful and resilient in the face of challenges and change.

BALANCED

We understand the importance of balancing different aspects of our lives—intellectual, physical, and emotional—to achieve well-being for ourselves and others. We recognize our interdependence with other people and with the world in which we live.

REFLECTIVE

We thoughtfully consider the world and our own ideas and experience. We work to understand our strengths and weaknesses in order to support our learning and personal development.

The IB learner profile represents 10 attributes valued by IB World Schools. We believe these attributes, and others like them, can help individuals and groups become responsible members of local, national and global communities.

Arts strands

Creating

The creating strand supports students to be inquirers, to explore their interests, beliefs and values, as they engage in a personal artistic journey. The process of creating something provides learners with opportunities to play, to be curious and to discover. Creating (including performing) within the arts can include learner expressions of emotion, intuition, spontaneity, investigation, experimentation, knowledge, ideas, and the intention of influencing an audience.

Learners develop as creative thinkers, and function as artists in environments which support their agency as they create, perform and present their work in multimodal ways. Thinking creatively enables learners to share their voice and connect with self and with others. Learners participate in creative practices, both independently and collaboratively, through which they can communicate distinctive forms of meaning, develop technical skills, take creative risks, solve problems and visualize outcomes.

When collaborating, students encounter opportunities to consider diverse perspectives and to experience artistic community. Documenting and presenting the process helps learners to reflect on their creative development and promotes international-mindedness through sharing and connecting with others.

Responding

The process of responding provides learners with opportunities to thoughtfully examine their own and others' artworks and processes, and in so doing become more aware of the ways in which they and other artists think and work. The responding strand is not simply about reflecting. Responding may include creative acts, playful and intentional exploration of ideas, experimentation and application of new processes, presenting, sharing, communicating, and giving and receiving thoughtful feedback. By responding to their own work and that of others, learners become more aware of their own artistic development, how what they do connects to what other artists are doing in the field, and the role that the arts play in the world around them.

As learners consider artworks and processes, they engage in the inquiry process, and develop skills of questioning, critical analysis, interpretation, evaluation, reflection, reflexivity and communication. Through engaging with the inquiry process, learners become aware that artworks are intended for different purposes and audiences, developing an understanding of whose stories are, and are not, being told. Learners demonstrate development of knowledge and understanding of concepts, methods, conventions and elements of the arts disciplines, and use specialized language. Using information sources, observations, prior knowledge and wonderings, learners make sense of artworks and performances, and recognize that personal experiences, beliefs and values may influence their interpretations, connections and associations. Learners describe the purpose, content and process of their own works, identify components within the piece and begin to evaluate how well these components communicate their desired intention.

Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
Learners show an understanding that they can express themselves and engage in the making and performing process in dance, drama, music and visual arts. They know that creating as artists (dancers, actors, musicians, visual artists, etc.) can be done on their own or with others. They are aware that inspiration to create in the arts comes from many sources, such as observation, insights and experience, curiosity, play, imagination and the works of others. Using symbols and representations , they recognize that their artworks and performances can convey meaning and demonstrate and express what they understand about the world.	Learners show an understanding that they can use the arts to communicate their ideas, feelings and experiences. As artists, they experiment with different strategies , tools and materials to develop ideas, convey meaning, solve problems, experience enjoyment and express intention in their work. They are aware that their work can connect with the thoughts and experiences of others and provoke different responses from them. They understand the value of working individually and collaboratively within the creative process.	Learners continue to experiment and play with ideas, strategies, tools and materials to explore their potential and expand the boundaries of their thinking and skills. Learners demonstrate a growing awareness that, as artists, they can influence thinking through the arts they create and perform. They think critically about their learning and recognize that their personal interests, beliefs and values inform their unique perspective and can inspire their creative work. They show an understanding of the relationships between their work and that of others.	Learners show that, as artists, they can influence and challenge thinking and behaviour through their creations. They think critically about their learning and recognize that their personal interests, beliefs and values can inform their creative work, while understanding that their perspective is one of many. They see the potential of the arts to connect with, and impact, audiences within a wider community. While experimentation and play remain important in the creating strand, learners begin to make more intentional choices about their process, through increased focus, persistence and reflection. They consider responses to their work as opportunities to inform and challenge their artistic development.

Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
Learners show an understanding that the different art forms are forms of expression to be enjoyed, explored and experimented with. They learn to notice things and ask questions about artworks and performances. They know that dance, drama, music and visual arts use symbols and representations to convey meaning. Through engaging with, and sharing, different art forms, learners begin to develop an understanding of audience. They learn to talk about, interpret and respond to different art forms, including their own work and that of others.	Learners show an understanding that diverse ideas, feelings and experiences can be communicated through the arts. They observe and recognize that there are a variety of art practices around them. They reflect on, question, talk about, and learn from their own stages of creating artworks. They are aware that artworks and performances may be created with a specific audience in mind.	Learners show an understanding that diverse issues, beliefs and values can be explored in the arts. They demonstrate curiosity, empathy and respect towards various cultures, places and times, observing similarities and differences between them. They reflect on their own work, identifying areas that are working well or not working well, considering changes in order to best express their desired intentions. They use strategies, based on what they know, to interpret the arts. They are able to identify connections between what they are learning and what other artists do. They understand that the arts play a role in our world.	Learners show an understanding that throughout different cultures, places and times, people have innovated and created new modes in the arts. They can analyse different art forms (dance, drama, music and visual arts) and identify common or recurring themes or issues. They can describe their own intentions and choices and speculate on the intentions and choices of other artists, based on what they know and observe. They can reflect on feedback from others, by carefully considering it, challenging it and incorporating it as appropriate. Learners become more aware of what they are doing, how their work connects to what other artists are doing and how it connects to the role the arts play in the world around them.

Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
People can enjoy and learn from creating through the arts.	People solve problems during the creative process by thinking critically and imaginatively.	The arts can influence and challenge thinking and behaviour.	Exploring a range of possibilities and perspectives helps people to broaden and communicate their creative work.
The creative process involves exploring and taking risks, individually or with others.	People are receptive to the value of working individually and collaboratively to create art.	Collaboration fosters teamwork, empathy and respect for diverse perspectives.	The arts provide a vehicle for people to explore their creative potential, through both collaborative and personal artistic journeys.
People make choices that allow others to share how they see the world.	Embracing experimentation and taking risks in the arts encourage innovation, resilience and growth.	People make connections between their artistic expressions and those of others to extend their thinking.	Personal interests, beliefs and values inform artists' perspectives of their own artworks and that of others.
People are inspired to create by many sources.	Development of techniques expands an artist's creative toolbox and enhances expression.	Creating in the arts allows for the exploration and expression of personal identity, experiences and perspectives.	Focus, persistence and reflection guide artists to make intentional choices in the art-making process.
People express themselves through the arts, and tell stories through movement, music and visual imagery.	The creation of immersive digital environments allows for new ways of storytelling.	The use of different platforms for creative expression helps people to explore their potential, expand the boundaries of their thinking, share ideas and engage with a diverse audience.	Interactive digital experiences can enhance an audience's appreciation and interpretation of a creative piece.

Example learning outcomes: Dance
Strand: Creating
Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
Learners: - respond to word, rhythm and/or music through movements - explore, through play, body movement as a form of spontaneous expression to communicate and express feelings - explore the dynamic flow of body movements such as fast, slow, big, small, strong, smooth, sharp, tension and relaxation - move freely through the space to show levels of low, medium and high, and change of direction - use materials such as streamers, scarves, props or costumes to enhance body movements - develop physical awareness by using isolated body movements and gross motor skills - explore different types of movements such as travelling, jumping and turning - develop the ability to cooperate and communicate with others in creating dance - work individually or in groups with trust and confidence.	Learners: - create movement to various tempos - interpret and communicate feeling, experience and narrative through dance - design a dance phrase with a beginning, middle and ending - create movement that explores dimensions of direction, level and shape - develop physical balance and coordination - share dance with different audiences by participating, listening and watching - work cooperatively towards a common goal, taking an active part in a creative experience - consider and maintain appropriate behaviours in dance, as an audience member or as a performer, by listening, watching and showing appreciation - use a range of strategies, tools or materials to express an idea or emotion, find solutions, or enhance movement or expression.	Learners: - explore various sources of musical and natural rhythms such as beat, breath, and emotional and environmental rhythms - investigate and perform a cultural or historical dance form with an understanding of the function of the dance form as artistic, ritual or social - perform increasingly more difficult sequences with control - create movement to show contrast in designs such as symmetry/asymmetry and opposition/succession - develop physical flexibility and strength - experience varying groupings when performing dance, including ensemble performance - express their unique values, beliefs and interests through a dance form - interpret and replicate a variety of dance styles and genres.	Learners: - improvise to create various movements for specific purposes - choreograph movement to music, word and sound - choreograph performance to express and communicate an idea, feeling, experience, relationship or narrative - create and perform in a variety of dance genres and cultural dance types - show physical confidence in the use of their bodies - work to develop each other's ideas during the creative process - analyse and integrate the reflections of others into the creative process when evaluating and improving - identify how their own and others' unique values, beliefs and interests might be expressed and interpreted through a dance form - demonstrate developing independence to explore personal creative potential and skill development, and work persistently and reflectively throughout the artistic-making process.

Example learning outcomes: Drama
Strand: Creating
Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
Learners: - engage in imaginative play using a range of stimuli - develop the ability to cooperate and communicate with others in creating drama - explore basic bodily movements and the use of space - explore familiar roles, themes and stories dramatically - create roles in response to props, set and costumes - work individually or in groups with confidence.	Learners: - share drama with different audiences by participating, listening and watching - identify with characters through role-play development - use performance as a problem-solving tool - work cooperatively towards a common goal, taking an active part in a creative experience - make use of simple performance conventions to share ideas - consider and maintain appropriate behaviours in drama, as an audience member or as a performer - value and develop imaginary roles or situations - use a range of strategies, tools or materials to express an idea or emotion, find solutions or enhance expression.	Learners: - create a devised or scripted performance for a particular audience or purpose - make artistic choices about role, situation and context - identify how cultural connections can be made through the use of different dramatic forms and/or genres - identify and develop the personal and related skills encountered through the drama experience - find appropriate ways to communicate specific meaning using dramatic action - express their unique values, beliefs and interests through a dramatic form - interpret written dialogues or scenarios.	Learners: - manipulate a variety of different drama strategies and techniques to create informed scripts, and characterizations within authentic contexts - work to develop each other's ideas during the creative process - create and perform a sequential drama that explores a particular issue by experimenting with different dramatic forms - consider the skills and techniques used by a range of drama practitioners in the performing arts - show an awareness of audience and adapt performances accordingly - consider the advice and feedback of others as an essential part of the creative process - explore writing for performance - identify how their own and others' unique values, beliefs and interests might be expressed and interpreted through a dramatic experience - demonstrate developing growing independence to explore personal creative potential and skill development.

Example learning outcomes: Music
Strand: Creating
Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
Learners: • use vocal sounds, rhythms and instruments to express feelings or ideas • create and accompany music using a variety of sounds and instruments • play untuned percussion instruments in time with a beat • use the voice and body to create musical patterns • explore, through play, sounds using the voice and/or instruments as a means of expressing imaginative ideas • recreate sounds from familiar experiences • participate in performing and creating music both individually and collectively • record their personal, visual interpretation of elements of sound (for example, loud/soft, high/low, fast/slow) • create their own basic musical instruments.	Learners: • explore a range of vocal sounds, rhythms, instruments and timbres to communicate ideas and feelings • express one or more moods/feelings in a musical composition • create music to represent different cultures and styles • create a soundscape based on personal experiences • collaboratively create a musical sequence using known musical elements (for example, rhythm, melody, contrast) • read, write and perform simple musical patterns and phrases • create music for different purposes.	Learners: • create a musical composition expressing their own ideas and feelings on a social issue • deliver a musical message to different audiences (for example, peace message to parents, younger children, friends) • create and perform a movement sequence using known musical elements • improvise upon a basic pattern to reinforce the importance of the individual within the group • create and record a composition focusing on form, structure and style to give more meaning to their message • express themselves as individuals through musical composition • read and write music using notation systems • investigate connections between their own work and the work of others.	Learners: • create music that will be continually refined after being shared with others • present, individually or in small groups, innovative musical performances on a selected issue • incorporate the other arts disciplines and available resources to broaden their creative expression • explore and use other systems of music notation • identify how their own and others' unique values, beliefs and interests might be expressed and interpreted through a musical composition • demonstrate developing independence to explore personal creative potential and skill development.

Example learning outcomes: Visual arts
Strand: Creating
Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
Learners: - engage with, and enjoy a variety of visual arts experiences - select tools, materials and processes for specific purposes - combine different formal elements to create a specific effect - realize that their artwork has meaning - use their imagination and experiences to inform their art-making - create artwork in response to a range of stimuli - take responsibility for the care of tools and materials - take responsibility for their own and others' safety in the working environment - participate in individual and collaborative creative experiences.	Learners: - identify, plan and make specific choices of materials, tools and processes - sharpen their powers of observation - demonstrate control of tools, materials and processes - make predictions, experiment and anticipate possible outcomes - combine a variety of formal elements to communicate ideas, feelings and/or experiences - identify the stages of their own and others' creative processes - consider their audience when creating artwork - work cooperatively towards a common goal, taking an active part in a creative experience.	Learners: - show awareness of the affective power of visual arts - make connections between the ideas they are exploring in their artwork and those explored by other artists through time, place and cultures - create artwork for a specific audience - use a personal interest, belief or value as the starting point to create a piece of artwork - use a range of strategies to solve problems during the creative process.	Learners: - become increasingly independent in the realization of the creative process - adjust and refine their creative process in response to constructive criticism - identify factors to be considered when displaying an artwork - utilize a broad range of ways to make meaning - select, research and develop an idea or theme for an artwork - develop an awareness of their personal preferences.

Strand: Responding
Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
People experience different forms of the arts by participating in, observing and creating art.	People are receptive to arts practices and artworks from different cultures, places and times (including their own).	People make connections between different cultures, places and times, cultivating curiosity, empathy and respect.	People communicate and innovate through exploration of the arts across cultures, places and times.
Dance, drama, music and visual arts are powerful forms of communication, conveying emotions and ideas.	The arts provide opportunities for personal expression and reflection, and connection with diverse cultures and perspectives.	The arts can be a powerful tool for exploring issues, beliefs and values, raising awareness, advocating for social issues and promoting positive change.	Talking about artwork helps people to identify and speculate about choices and intentions in an artist's work.
People make meaning through the use of symbols.	People reflect on and learn from the different stages of creating.	People draw on their own experiences to interpret art and to deepen their understanding of themselves, other artists and the world around them.	Analysing different art forms helps people to identify common themes or issues.
People share art with others and express their responses and questions about artworks and performances in a variety of ways.	There is a relationship between the artist and the audience.	People reflect and act upon the responses to their creative work.	People analyse and make changes to their work, in response to audience feedback, to help them express their intentions and engage their audience more effectively.
Reflecting on the arts provides a means to explore and express complex emotions, promoting emotional well-being and empathy.	The arts preserve cultural heritage, traditions and stories, ensuring that they are passed down to future generations.	The media influences our perceptions, beliefs and values, and people should critically analyse and respond to its impact.	The arts transcend borders, facilitating cross-cultural dialogue, understanding, and unity among diverse communities.

Example learning outcomes: Dance
Strand: Responding
Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
Learners: - show curiosity about live and recorded dance performances - describe the ideas and feelings communicated through body movements - identify and explain why certain body postures may communicate certain ideas and feelings - display audience etiquette and appropriate responses such as watching, listening and responding to favourite parts of the performance - respond to dance through spoken, written, visual and/or kinaesthetic mediums.	Learners: - recognize a variety of dance genres over time and how they differ from the contemporary dance form of their and/or other cultures - recognize the theme of a dance and communicate their personal interpretation - identify dance components such as rhythm and use of space in their own and others' dance creations - describe and evaluate the learnings and understandings developed through their exploration of dance - realize that there is a dynamic connection between the audience and performer.	Learners: - recognize that dance plays an innovative role in communicating ideas within cultures and societies - reflect on their personal and family history, and make connections with cultural and historical dance forms - consider the composition of an audience when preparing an effective formal and/or informal presentation - reflect on artistic processes in dance achievements and how to incorporate new ideas into future work - recognize how dance can be used to express and recognize how dance can be used to express their understanding of their inner thoughts and of the world around them.	Learners: - compare a variety of dance genres over time to the contemporary dance form of their culture and/or other cultures - recognize the role and relevance of dance in their own society through exposure to a variety of performers and their perspectives - describe how dance plays an innovative role in communicating ideas within cultures and societies - analyse how the meanings of movements can change in various cultural and historical contexts - analyse and integrate the reflections of others into the creative process when evaluating and improving - observe and speculate on the choices and intentions of their own dance creations/performances and the work of others.

Example learning outcomes: Drama
Strand: Responding
Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
Learners: - respond to live performances, stories and plays from other times and/or places - talk about ideas and feelings in response to dramatic performances - display audience etiquette and appropriate responses - realize that dramatic conventions are used to craft performance - use materials to symbolically show location and character - respond to dramatic ideas through spoken, visual, auditory and kinaesthetic mediums.	Learners: - compare varied styles of performance with drama from their own culture - use drama performance to tell stories about people and events from various cultures, including their own - discuss and explain the way ideas, feelings and experiences can be communicated through stories and performance - describe and evaluate the learning and understandings developed through their exploration of drama - describe the dynamic connection between the audience and performer.	Learners: - discuss aspects of drama that illustrate relationships between culture, history and location - explore how dramatic meaning illustrates the values, beliefs and observations of an individual or community - consider the composition of an audience when preparing an effective formal and/or informal presentation - reflect on achievement and challenges and how they can incorporate these influences in future work - recognize and discuss how the consequences and actions of a performance teach audience members and performers life lessons.	Learners: - describe how drama plays an innovative role in communicating ideas within cultures and societies - understand the role and relevance of drama in their own society through exposure to a variety of performers and their perspectives - reflect on a variety of dramatic forms to identify new understandings within the arts - recognize and explore some of the different roles in theatre - use responses to drama to adapt and improve work, considering the original intention.

Example learning outcomes: Music
Strand: Responding
Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
Learners: • move their bodies to express the mood of the music • describe how music makes them feel • distinguish the sounds of different instruments in music • listen to music and create their own work in response • express their responses to music in multiple ways (drawings, games, songs, dance, oral discussion) • explore body and untuned percussion instrument sounds • recognize different sources of music in daily life • recognize that sound can be notated in a variety of ways.	Learners: • create a musical composition to match the mood of a visual image (for example, paintings, photographs, film) • explore individually or collectively a musical response to a narrated story • reflect on and communicate their reactions to music using musical vocabulary • record and share the stages of the process of creating a composition • share performances with each other and give constructive criticism.	Learners: • compare aspects of music from different times and places • create and perform a movement sequence accompanied by music that they have created • share and compare their experiences as audience members at various performances • describe the process used to create their own music and compare it with others, in order to improve their compositions • analyse different compositions describing how the musical elements enhance the message • reflect upon how their music expresses their personal voice and the impact it has on others.	Learners: • modify their practices and/or compositions based on the audiences' responses • explore different artistic presentations that are/were innovative and their implications • observe and speculate on the choices and intentions of their own music creations/performances and the work of others.

Example learning outcomes: Visual arts
Strand: Responding
Phase 1	Phase 2	Phase 3	Phase 4
Learners: - enjoy experiencing artworks - show curiosity and ask questions about artworks - describe what they notice about an artwork - identify the materials and processes used in the creation of an artwork - analyse the relationships within an artwork and construct meanings - communicate their initial responses to an artwork in visual, oral or physical modes - make personal connections to artworks - express opinions about an artwork - create artwork in response to a variety of stimuli.	Learners: - identify ideas, feelings and/or experiences expressed in artworks - investigate the purposes of artwork from different times, places and a range of cultures including their own - sharpen their powers of observation - identify the formal elements of an artwork - use appropriate terminology to discuss artwork - describe similarities and differences between artworks - identify the stages of their own and others' creative processes - become an engaged and responsive audience for a variety of art forms.	Learners: - compare, contrast and categorize artworks from a range of cultures, places and times - identify and consider the contexts in which artworks were made - identify issues, beliefs and values expressed in artworks - use their knowledge and experiences to make informed interpretations of artworks - reflect on their own and others' creative processes to inform their thinking - use relevant and insightful questions to extend their understanding - recognize that different audiences respond in different ways to artworks - provide constructive criticism when responding to artwork.	Learners: - describe ways in which artists have innovated across cultures, places and times - explain the cultural and historical perspectives of an artwork, considering whose voices are not being heard - understand the role and relevance of visual arts in society - reflect on the factors that influence personal reactions to artwork - reflect throughout the creative process to challenge their thinking and enact new and unusual possibilities - critique and make informed judgements about artworks.

Arts glossary

Affective power	Artists use their imagination, creativity and skill to create artworks that can affect our emotions. They use colours, shapes, lines and textures to communicate their ideas and feelings, and when we look at their artworks, we connect with their emotions and thoughts.
Artistic community	Artistic activity characterized by interaction, dialogue or collaboration with others.
Artwork	A piece of created or performed art.
Dance phrase	A short sequence of related movements.
Dramatic or performance conventions	A convention is a technique employed regularly in drama so that the audience comes to attach a specific meaning to it. Examples include slow motion, use of an aside, narration.
Dramatic forms	The method used to tell a story, for example, mime, choral work, physical theatre, comedy.
Dynamic flow	How the elements of dance can work together harmoniously.
Elements	Constituent features of the chosen discipline. Examples could include: line, shape, space, form, colour, texture, rhythm, movement, contrast, emphasis, balance, harmony, variety, unity, pattern and proportion.
Musical elements	Dynamics, form, harmony, melody, pitch, rhythm, texture, timbre, tempo.
Notation	Musical notation is a series of symbols and markings that tell musicians how to perform a composition. It can take a number of forms.
Processes	The ways in which an artwork is made and presented.
Reflexivity	Questioning one's own taken-for-granted assumptions.
Strategies	Ways of doing something; plan of action.
Symbols and representation	Marks, shapes, lines, for example, that are used to represent something else.
Wonderings	To feel curiosity or uncertainty. For example: I wonder if the artist used bright colours in the painting because they want us to feel happy?
